UMB Adds Bottomline Business Services to Web Platform

Bottomline Technologies, a provider of payments and invoice automation software and services, announced that UMB Financial has launched a new online business banking service leveraging multiple components of Bottomline's WebSeries enterprise payments platform, which works through a single Web-based interface for originating, processing and reporting of payments for corporate customers. Through UMB's Web exchange, customers can streamline transaction processes with instantaneous account transfers online, generate highly customized payment status reports in real-time for more informed business decisions, and take advantage of new self-administered security controls, according to Bottomline.
